

33 Mackenzie Street Bendigo VIC

4 3 2

Designed by renowned Bendigo architects Vahland and Getzschmann, Osborne House was originally built as a private school in 1869, extended in 1870 and sold in 1888 when it became a boarding house.

The property enjoys a privileged position surrounded by more of Vahland's inspiring designs - the Forest Street Anglican, Methodist and Congregational churches while just over the hill, the massive spire of the Sacred Heart Cathedral dominates the skyline.

Both the skyline and the residence have undergone much change over the last century and now enjoy a harmonious blend of traditional form and modern function.

Beyond the secluded front entry, Osborne House offers grand Victorian proportions blended seamlessly with a timeless French influence.

Built over three levels, the residence has four bedrooms plus home office, grand formal lounge and dining rooms
